The Power of Advocacy

On Wednesday, June 20, we join people across the United States to celebrate the courage and resiliency of refugees, recognizing the hardships they have faced, the new lives they have created, and the positive impact they have on our communities. We also recognize and remember that the United States has been a leader in protecting and resettling refugees. As we face significant efforts to dismantle the U.S. refugee resettlement program, we honor refugees' courage in overcoming adversity and the many gifts they bring to our communities alongside historical U.S. leadership in protecting refugees from across the globe. As refugees and friends of refugees, we know the challenges newcomers face are greater than ever and that we must rally in support of preserving the resettlement program and promoting policies that help refugees rebuild their lives in the United States.

Be an Advocate

Developing relationships with your policy makers and educating them on refugee issues is necessary to influence the public narrative and support for refugees. It is critical to include a team of refugee leaders, resettlement staff, volunteers, employers, faith groups, and other community members who meet regularly and deepen relationships with policy makers. It is important that policy makers understand that their constituents care about refugees, and that refugees are their constituents — they live, work, and contribute in their communities, obtain U.S. citizenship, and vote. As our local, state, and national leaders consider proposals that will impact refugees, it is personal relationships that will urge them to stand with those seeking safety.

Your Voice Matters

Your story is your most powerful tool.. As a refugee, staff member, or community member, talking about how your community welcomes refugees and the diverse contributions they make is key to building relationships with policy makers and encouraging their support for the program. When policy makers know that their constituents care about refugees, they will increasingly vote to support refugee protection and resettlement. It's important to note that 501(c)3 organizations can confidently educate policy makers about who refugees are and how policy proposals will impact their community. The IRS holds that 501(c)3 organizations can take positions on public policy issues, and that lobbying is acceptable, as long as it is not a substantial part of the organization's work and/or is less than 20% of a non-profit's budget. There are also special permissions for religious groups.

Engaging National and State Elected Leaders

At the national and state levels, individuals who oppose refugee resettlement are making their voices heard. These groups utilize anti-refugee, anti-immigrant, and anti-Muslim rhetoric to draft legislation that engenders fear and fosters hostile atmospheres for newcomers. More than 80 bills aimed at dismantling and limiting the U.S. refugee resettlement program have been introduced in Congress since 2015. In 2015, 31 governors voiced opposition to resettling Syrian refugees, and in 2016, more than 50 anti-refugee proposals were introduced across 19 state legislatures. Due to the hard work of advocates across the country, only one of these proposals passed. So far in 2018, we have seen 35 anti-refugee proposals across 19 states, and in 18 different states there are currently 29 pro-refugee bills. If we want policy makers to advance pro-refugee legislation and oppose proposals that would dismantle the refugee program it is critical that we amplify the voices of refugee and community leaders.

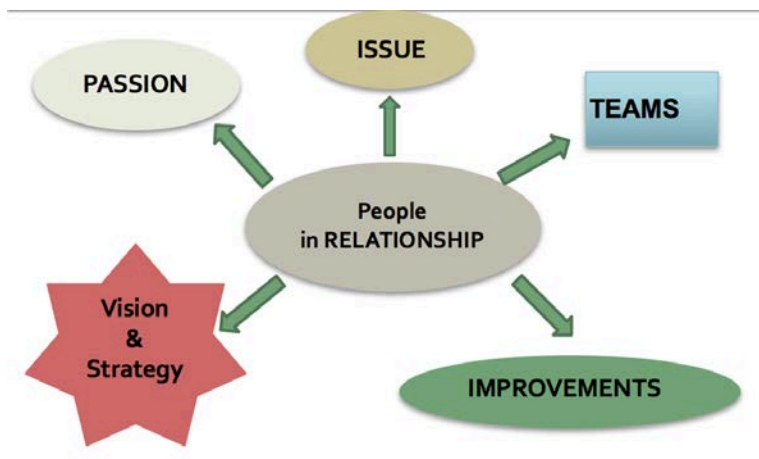

Engaging Local Policy Makers

Efforts to stop refugee resettlement in certain communities have been gaining traction. To combat these efforts, it is critical for local policy makers to hear directly about many contributions of refugees in their communities. City, municipal, and other local councils and commissions need to hear that their communities stand ready to help refugees integrate and thrive. When you meet with your local elected officials, educate them about resolutions and other tools they can adopt to affirm refugees and the resettlement program. Cities and counties across the nation have passed resolutions affirming they are welcoming, inclusive, and ready to accept refugees of all backgrounds, countries of origin, and faiths. Urge your local leaders to adopt welcoming resolutions that extend hospitality to refugees and all newcomers – even if they have adopted resolutions in the past. You can also urge your local officials to write letters to the White House, Department of State, and Congress in support of the refugee resettlement program. Click here for to see a framework one community developed to assess itself and facilitate welcome and inclusiveness of refugees and immigrants.

Where to Start: Teambuilding

The art of teambuilding is a critical component to advocacy. Teambuilding brings together diverse voices – such as resettlement staff, refugee leaders, faith leaders, and others – who can speak to the importance of welcoming refugees and helping them integrate and thrive from several perspectives. This is how you create and sustain teams of advocates who can take action together for change.

Visualizing Teambuilding

How Do I Build a Team?

Step 1: Internal Assessment

What are you passionate about? Why? What in your life journey has brought about this passion?
What policy changes (national and local) would you and your community like to see?
How could you see your community working to be part of bringing that change about?
What does being an “advocate” mean to you?

Step 2: One on One Relationship Building

Face to face meeting in a mutually preferred location
Intentional conversation, not an interview
Listening for passion, vision, stories
Work together to identify other people who would be interested in joining you
Each agree to reach out to people who share your vision and help build / energize a team

Step 3: Grow Your Team

Who else might care and be interested?
Ask each person to reach out to 3-5 more people and have one-on-one meetings
Set a timeline for a team meeting

Step 4: Bring the Team Together

Goal: bring together a solid group of 8-20 people
Create a common vision: what are our hopes and expectations?
Create an action plan: How do we build toward bringing that vision to life?
Who are natural allies who can be energized into being advocates and champions?
Identify next steps, including ways to engage with policy makers and other influential people.

Refugee Community In-District Advocacy Week: May 29 – June 1, 2018

Who You Are. Why You Care. What You Want.

It is more important than ever to meet with your local, state, and national policy makers to educate them about the vital role that refugees and all newcomers play in your communities. Change takes time, and meeting with policy makers should be viewed as part of a continuing process of gathering and sharing information, building relationships, and developing an advocacy strategy. Members of Congress will be in their state and local offices a few weeks before World Refugee Day—May 28–June 3.

Building Power for Refugee Resettlement

A good time to meet with your Members of Congress and/or their staff is during Congressional recesses when they are in their states and local offices. Calendars of in-district time can be found here: Senate and House of Representatives. Schedules fill up very quickly for these recess periods, so reach out as soon as possible.

Steps to Prepare and Organize Your Meeting

1. Create an advocacy team: An ideal team consists of different stakeholder voices such as refugees, case workers, faith leaders, business leaders, military veterans, and community leaders who can all share in the planning, outreach, and coordination of advocacy actions and speak to the diversity of support for refugee resettlement. Convene in advance to discuss current relationships with policy makers, goals, asks for the meeting, what you want to learn, and an agenda for a successful meeting.

2. Learn about your elected officials: Are your Members of Congress in Congressional leadership, or on the Senate or House Appropriations Committees; Senate or House Judiciary Committees; Senate or House Homeland Security Committees; or Senate or House Foreign Relations Committees? If so, they have jurisdiction over various aspects of the refugee program. Even if they aren't in leadership or on these committees, their vote is still important, and they can still be champions for refugees. Note: To learn more about your governor, state legislators, mayor, and local officials, click here.

3. Have a plan: Before you enter an advocacy visit, meet with your group beforehand to assign roles:

- The Facilitator starts the meeting, introduces the group, explains the purpose for the meeting, and provides time for each person to briefly introduce themselves and their organization and/or connection to refugees, to show that the group represents thousands of community members. The facilitator will also jump in if the meeting goes off-track and redirect the conversation.
- The Personal Story is key to every meeting. A refugee should tell their story to show how peoples' lives are changed through refugee resettlement.
- Specific Issue Points - It will be helpful to bring handouts— copies available for print are linked here. Stories of welcome by state are available here and here. Information on refugees by state can be found here.
- The Ask for All Leaders - The critical part when you ask "Will you be a champion for refugee protection and resettlement and oppose any and all anti-refugee proposals?"
- The Ask for Local/State Leaders – "Will you champion a welcoming resolution to declare our community a city/state of welcome?" A sample resolution and a sample letter to the White House and Department of State supporting resettlement are on pages 14 and 15.

4. Debrief: It's important to debrief as a team in a separate location following the meeting. As a group, ask: What did we hear and learn? Did we get what we wanted? How did we work together as a team? What are the next steps? How can we engage this policy maker in the future, perhaps through event invitations, etc.? Share your reflections with your organization's advocacy staff (see last page for contact information).

5. Follow-up: Send a thank you email to the staff after the meeting with any information they asked for and any other relevant information you think would be helpful. Inviting the staff and/or official to an upcoming event to meet with refugees is an excellent next step!

ACTION ALERT: Urge Your Local, State, and National Leaders to Welcome Refugees

Right now, it is more important than ever for all of our elected officials to hear that their communities welcome refugees. More than 65 million people have been persecuted and forced from their homes and are seeking safety. Refugee resettlement saves lives, encourages other countries to keep their doors open to people needing protection, and promotes regional stability and global security. We cannot turn our backs on refugees we have pledged to welcome. Nor can we discriminate against individuals based on where they're from or what religion they practice.

The administration set the refugee admissions goal for fiscal year 2018 at 45,000 – the lowest level in U.S. history – and we are on track to resettle only around 20,000 refugees this year. As people who care about refugees, we must make sure that our Members of Congress do everything they can to see the administration meet the 45,000 refugee admissions goal and commit to resettling at least 75,000 refugees next year. Take action to ensure our leaders affirm the importance of the refugee resettlement program.

World Refugee Day: Media & Outreach Resources

Writing & Pitching Your Event and Opinion Editorial (Op-Ed)

When drafting an opinion piece, research the outlet you are submitting to. Many have a word limit around 600, but please check the outlet's website for guidance. Please feel free to use the points in the draft op-ed below as you write your own opinion article, or feel free to write directly from the heart - what you have to say deserves to be heard!

When pitching your event, op-ed, or other welcoming project, it is important to keep your pitch short and on message. Most editors and outlets prefer pitches over email or through a submission form on their website. It is important to keep your pitch as short as possible, as reporters are often on a deadline and receive many story pitches every day. Open your pitch with an interesting first line and relate the pitch back to another story the reporter has recently written to increase the likelihood of the reporter picking up your story. Please see the draft pitch below for an example email.

To further increase your chances of the media covering your story, set up an exclusive interview with an outlet for attendees at your event. Making your event exclusive to one reporter makes it more appealing to the journalist and outlet as they will be the first ones to "break" the story that ties into current events at a local level. When pitching an exclusive story, be sure to research the outlets and reporters in your area. Who are the top current event, immigration, or political reporters in your area? Have they written about refugees before? If so, how can you tie your event into their previous work? Answering these questions and using them to draft your pitch will help increase the chances of your welcoming event being covered and featured as an exclusive in a larger outlet.

Dear Editor,

As the global community faces the largest displacement crisis in history, our organization/congregation is preparing to resettle refugees and do our part to create a welcoming community. Serving as a leader with ORGANIZATION, I had the unique opportunity to host/attend EVENT, (include brief details).

The event inspired me to author the attached op-ed, detailing my experience and reaffirming the need for us all to work together and create an inclusive community. In light of recent anti-Muslim rhetoric in particular, this piece offers a timely response and highlights the urgent need to create a welcoming place for all people.

Sample World Refugee Day Faith Leader Op-Ed

Welcoming Refugees: It's a Matter of Faith

On World Refugee Day, I reflect how from the earliest days of [Sunday school/Hebrew School/Seminary], my faith has taught and called me to welcome the stranger, stand with the vulnerable, and love my neighbor. Now, as a father, minister, and [Tennessean], I am proud to demonstrate these values in my daily life and weekly sermons at [name of congregation]. But it is also because of those values that I am deeply disturbed by recent anti-refugee and anti-immigrant sentiment espoused by some of our law makers. It sends an unwelcoming and mean-spirited message of exclusion to refugee families fleeing violence and persecution.

Last year, [INSERT STATE CONTEXT]. This [BILL, RESOLUTION, PROPOSAL], as well as the recent executive order to stop refugee resettlement stands opposite to my beliefs as a person of faith. Refugees are also the most scrutinized individuals entering the United States. To claim that they are security threats to our community not only ignores the unimaginable circumstances they flee and heavily scrutinized path to safe haven in the United States, but also stokes fear rather than cultivating compassion, truth, and understanding.

[INSERT RELEVANT SCRIPTURE – EX: “Bring water to the thirsty, meet the fugitive with bread... For they have fled from the swords, from the drawn sword, from the bent bow, and from the stress of battle.” - Isaiah 21:14-15; “And (as for) those who believed and fled and struggled hard in Allah's way, and those who gave shelter and helped, these are the believers truly; they shall have forgiveness and honorable provision.” (Quran 8:74); “And you are to love those who are foreigners, for you yourselves were foreigners in Egypt.” (Deuteronomy 10:19)]

From the [earliest books] in the [Bible/Torah/Quran], our faith calls on us to show mercy and hospitality to those fleeing persecution. We are called to treat them with dignity, respect, and love, providing the same welcome that we ourselves would hope for. As Americans, we live in a country built in part by the hard work, dreams, and determination of generations of immigrants and refugees -- many of whom were our ancestors. Sadly, it seems that our state legislators have forgotten these lessons and have acted with fear instead of compassion.

Refugees are mothers, fathers, and children. They are doctors, teachers, lawyers, business owners, craftsmen, and musicians. As the world searches for solutions to the largest displacement crisis in history, with more than 21 million refugees worldwide, we have a moral and legal obligation to refugees seeking a chance to rebuild their lives and create a better future for their families. These people are no different than our [Biblical] ancestors who were once refugees who found welcome and were called to do the same.

Today, on World Refugee Day, I urge our state lawmakers to ensure [Tennessee] is providing refugees a chance to live, work, and go to school in safety. To do otherwise would be to dishonor our legacy of welcome and hospitality and fall short of our values.

Sample World Refugee Day Refugee Leader Op-Ed

Take it From Someone Who Has Been in Their Shoes: We Must Welcome Refugees

My name is [name], and I'm [career, family, etc.] I came to the United States as a refugee from [country] [time] years ago. My family and I were forced to leave everything behind after [personal story].

Today, on World Refugee Day, I reflect on my journey and am so grateful to the United States and my new community for giving me another chance at life.

As with many refugees, I would have preferred to remain in my homeland. However, [share why you needed to move, and that the journey was difficult and long]. After experiencing such traumas, I faced other challenges while resettlement, such as [name a few of these challenges]. What made the biggest difference in overcoming these hardships--and in healing from past traumas--has been the welcome received when I joined my new community. [Name a few ways you were welcomed, and tell how that made you feel.]

As someone who understands the struggles of refugees firsthand, I am disheartened to see that my beloved new home is denying that same opportunity to others now facing similarly dangerous situations.

I always viewed America as a beacon of hope. The executive orders banning Muslim immigrants and refugees do not reflect that. In fact, they completely contradict the values America stands for: compassion, welcome, and resilience. The United States is a country where anyone should be able to pursue the American Dream and live in safety.

[Insert STATE specific context with regard to any refugee-related state proposals.] The fear, hate and xenophobia perpetuated by [IF RELEVANT: this state bill] and the executive order does not reflect the [STATE] and America I know. The [STATE] and America I know is compassionate in its acceptance of those seeking shelter from some of the worst conflicts in history.

I continue now to believe in the importance of welcoming others--for others have welcomed me. I seek, myself, to welcome other refugees who are new arrivals. I raise my voice to support the rights of refugees through my work as [INSERT YOUR STORY].

As someone who knows firsthand the horrors that refugees flee and the sense of hope finding a home brings, I urge our local leaders, state legislators, and national policy makers to stand with refugees--today and every day. Only then will we truly reflect the welcome our country stands for.

Together, we can inspire welcome across the country and around the world.

Sample Invite to Policy Makers to Your World Refugee Day Event

The Honorable [full name of Policy Maker]
[Address]

Dear Senator/Representative [last name]:

I write to invite you to attend [EVENT], a celebration of World Refugee Day taking place on [date, time] at [location]. World Refugee Day is observed each year on June 20th to help raise awareness to the situation of refugees throughout the world.

The world is currently experiencing the largest refugee crisis in recorded history. An unprecedented 65.6 million people have been forcibly displaced from their homes because of violence, persecution, and war. There are 22.5 million refugees – more than half of them children. Protecting millions of people fleeing violence requires a robust international response. To this end, the United States must continue its long history of welcoming refugees, which is not only a reflection of American values and history, but remains a strong diplomatic tool. U.S. refugee resettlement is a life-saving program, and our nation's response to today's refugee crisis will determine our moral, diplomatic, and economic standing among world leaders for generations to come.

The USRAP was established by an Act of Congress in 1980 and has since been an integral part of U.S. foreign policy. The program is a highly successful example of a public-private partnership, where federal assistance is matched by funds raised in communities across the country. Refugees have opened businesses, revitalized towns, and become productive members of communities that welcomed them. Many become American citizens and see their children graduate from U.S. schools.

Every year, the United States welcomes refugees who are fleeing persecution due to their ethnicity, nationality, religion, political opinion, or membership in a particular social group. Our organization, [agency name], helps refugees who are resettled in [state] integrate quickly into our community by providing them with the tools of self-reliance: housing, job placement and employment skills, clothing, medical attention, education, English-language classes, and community orientation.

Each year on World Refugee Day we gather to draw attention to this humanitarian crisis. This year, we ask that you help celebrate the countless contributions refugees make to our community by sharing time with refugees living in our community, many who have become U.S. citizens.

Refugees are a testament to the United States' long, proud history as a sanctuary for those who seek lives free from violence and oppression. We look forward to celebrating this great tradition with you on June 20th.

Sample Letter to Send to Your Members of Congress

[Date]

The Honorable [Senator/Representative] (find this information at www.senate.gov and www.house.gov)
[room number] [name of congressional office building]
Washington, DC [20510/20515]

Dear [Senator/Representative] [last name]:

As your constituent from [city, state], I urge you to welcome refugees and support the U.S. refugee resettlement program. Resettlement is a strong American legacy that extends hospitality and offers a chance for refugees to rebuild their lives in safety and dignity. Every day, more community members than ever before are volunteering with resettlement offices around the country to help refugees integrate and thrive.

The world is experiencing the largest refugee crisis in global history. An unprecedented 65.6 million people have been forcibly displaced from their homes because of violence, persecution, and war. There are 22.5 million refugees – more than half of them children. The current global humanitarian crisis we face requires bold leadership. The United States has a long bipartisan history of welcoming refugees, which both reflects American values and serves as a strong diplomatic tool. The U.S. refugee resettlement is a life-saving program and grounded in a public-private partnership model, resettling an average of 80,000 refugees annually for over 40 years, with an average refugee admissions ceiling of 95,000 refugees per year. Our nation's role in responding to today's refugee crisis will determine our moral, diplomatic, and economic standing among world leaders.

In September 2017, President Trump announced a refugee admissions goal of 45,000 for Fiscal Year 2018, the lowest in the 38-year history of the U.S. refugee resettlement program. Since the program's inception, the United States has set an average refugee admissions goal of 95,000 refugees and has resettled up to 200,000 refugees in certain years. In order to reach this 45,000 goal, the administration must resettle an average of 3,750 refugees each month. However, projections estimate that the United States will resettle only around 20,000 refugees this year - less than half of the historically low 45,000 we promised to resettle. The consequences of low arrivals have been profound as tens of thousands of refugees remain in precarious or dangerous situations overseas.

We can't forget that this is not about a number – this is about saving lives. As the United States aims to put its values and interests first, it must not forget that offering freedom from oppression is a crucible of its founding. Resettling refugees is a way that the United States can live out its core values and ensure a more stable and democratic world. Abysmally low refugee arrivals challenge our credibility around the world as a moral and foreign policy leader. We implore you to do everything in your power to ensure the administration increases the pace of arrivals to resettle at least 45,000 refugees this year and commits to resettling at least 75,000 refugees in FY 2019.

[City, State Zip Code]

Dear [TITLE Last Name]:

As your constituent from [city, state], I urge you to welcome refugees, support the U.S. refugee resettlement program, and declare our [city/county/state] a “Welcoming City.” I would also urge you to write the State Department to show your support for resettlement. Resettlement is a strong American legacy that extends hospitality and offers a chance for refugees to rebuild their lives in safety and dignity. Every day, more community members than ever before are volunteering with resettlement offices around the country to help refugees integrate and thrive.

The world is experiencing the largest refugee crisis in global history. An unprecedented 65.6 million people have been forcibly displaced from their homes because of violence, persecution, and war. There are 22.5 million refugees – more than half of them children. The current global humanitarian crisis we face requires bold leadership. The United States has a long bipartisan history of welcoming refugees, which both reflects American values and serves as a strong diplomatic tool. The U.S. refugee resettlement is a life-saving program and grounded in a public-private partnership model, resettling an average of 80,000 refugees annually for over 40 years, with an average refugee admissions ceiling of 95,000 refugees per year. Our nation’s role in responding to today’s refugee crisis will determine our moral, diplomatic, and economic standing among world leaders.

In September 2017, President Trump announced a refugee admissions goal of 45,000 for Fiscal Year 2018, the lowest in the 38-year history of the U.S. refugee resettlement program. Since the program’s inception, the United States has set an average refugee admissions goal of 95,000 refugees and has resettled up to 200,000 refugees in certain years. In order to reach this 45,000 goal, the administration must resettle an average of 3,750 refugees each month. However, projections estimate that the United States will resettle only around 20,000 refugees this year - less than half of the historically low 45,000 we promised to resettle. The consequences of low arrivals have been profound as tens of thousands of refugees remain in precarious or dangerous situations overseas.

We can’t forget that this is not about a number – this is about saving lives. As the United States aims to put its values and interests first, it must not forget that offering freedom from oppression is a crucible of its founding. Resettling refugees is a way that the United States can live out its core values and ensure a more stable and democratic world. We implore you to do everything in your power to ensure the administration increases the pace of arrivals to resettle at least 45,000 refugees this year and commits to resettling at least 75,000 refugees in FY 2019. We also urge you to support federal funding for refugee protection and resettlement in FY19 to ensure local communities have the resources to help refugees integrate and thrive as they rebuild their lives, as well as to assist refugees abroad, and process and provide initial integration assistance to refugees resettled in the United States.

Our community is home to a diverse population of refugees and immigrants, adding to the economic strength and cultural richness of our community. We have been an example of a hospitable and welcoming place to all newcomers, where people thrive and the contributions of all are celebrated and valued. We urge to adopt a resolution declaring [City/County/State] a “Welcoming City,” one in which all are welcome, accepted, and appreciated.

We invite you to come visit our office and meet with refugees [perhaps include event information]. Thank you for your public service, and please contact me about how we can be supportive of moving a welcoming resolution forward.

Draft Letters for Local Officials to Send the White House & State Department

Dear President Trump and Secretary of State Pompeo:

Welcoming refugees shines a light on Americans' most cherished common values. As a community in [CITY, STATE], we believe in the strength of the U.S. refugee resettlement program and welcome refugees from all backgrounds, faiths, and countries of origin. This commitment reflects a core American belief in the dignity of every person, lifts up diversity as a community's strength, and cultivates an environment of inclusion. As the world faces the largest refugee crisis in global history with an unprecedented 65.6 million people have been forcibly displaced from their homes because of violence, persecution, and war, including 22.5 million refugees, this humanitarian crisis requires bold leadership. In our community, churches, synagogues, mosques, and other communities of faith stand in partnership to help refugees of all faiths find safety and hope as they start their lives as new Americans. The United States has a long history of providing protection to persons seeking safety from persecution. Civic Engagement on World Refugee Day

World Refugee Day is a great time to take one further step toward building welcoming communities that are inclusive and open to refugees, while also strengthening the ties within refugee communities. Integration is a key principle in our work, and this special day is an excellent opportunity to support refugees in civic engagement.

Civic engagement refers to the ways in which individuals participate in the life of their communities. Many refugees and immigrants are very active in the civic life of their own community, but there is greater need for participation in broader civic institutions, voting, and the process of policy making. This includes voting, understanding policy issues that impact their lives, educating and encouraging other individuals to vote and make their voices heard, and running for office. Civic engagement lifts up the voices and power of refugees and immigrants in our communities, thus educating policy makers and building champions across party lines at local, state, and national levels.

Civic engagement is a key component of integration: Voting and participating in civil society are key to the integration process. When immigrants and refugees become naturalized U.S. citizens and exercise their right to vote, they engage in an active process that goes beyond passive citizenship, empowering themselves to be full members of their new communities. Immigrants and refugees who are not yet naturalized, and therefore cannot yet vote, can contribute meaningfully by educating the public about the benefits that newcomers bring to their communities and helping with voter registration and get-out-the-vote activities.

Civic engagement is part of our mission to build welcoming communities: Refugees, resettlement offices, and supportive community members know first-hand the impact that policies have on the lives of refugees and entire communities. It is critical for policy makers to meet refugees and understand their struggles and the positive contributions that they make in communities. Civic engagement work can also energize volunteers and develop new leaders, as it brings communities together to engage with policy makers to build stronger communities.

Civic engagement work is non-partisan, and does not endorse any candidate or political party: RCUSA members are 501(c)3 organizations that promote non-partisan civic engagement as part of our joint mission to lift up the voices of refugees and build stronger, more welcoming communities. Neither RCUSA nor its member organizations endorse any party or candidate. You should never mention a political party or candidate while registering people to vote.

Voter Registration at Community Events for World Refugee Day

World Refugee Day events are great opportunities to register naturalized citizens to vote. Have volunteers register new voters or distribute voter registration information or early voting cards. World Refugee Day events are also great opportunities for sharing stories about individuals who have not been able to vote in the past, or who are voting for the first time, which is a great way to motivate everyone to register to vote and show up on election day.

Voter Registration Table Checklist

- ✓ Voter registration cards, absentee and early voting ballots, with relevant information on each
- ✓ Clip boards, a visual flow chart on voter registration, and sample scripts for volunteers (see next page)
- ✓ Commitment cards asking people to promise to vote on election day and a volunteer sign-up sheet
- ✓ State voter information from your Election Office, including a map of jurisdictions & polling places
- ✓ Signs: "Register to Vote Here!" & "Voter registration available without regard for the voter's political preference"
- ✓ Tally sheet for reporting your activity at the end of the day

Know Your State Voting Laws: The best resource on your state's voting laws is your local county election board. There are Voter ID laws in 32 states, which can limit people's access to voting. Each state also has their own early voting policies. It is important to know the laws in your state and communicate them in conversations with new voters. If your State has a voting ID law, make sure you inform people so they can prepare to have the necessary identification when they vote. Use these links to customize information based on your state's requirements:

- Voting ID laws by state: www.ncsl.org/research/elections-and-campaigns/voter-id.aspx
- Early & absentee voting by state: www.ncsl.org/research/elections-and-campaigns/absentee-and-early-voting.aspx

Collaborate Locally: Registration forms and early voting applications can be picked up at your local board of elections office. Ask them if there are any rules about non-profits turning in registration cards or early ballot applications once they are filled out by new voters, as some election boards have deadlines or limits on the number of registration forms or applications turned in at once. Work with a local organization dedicated to voter registration to enter the information into the Voter Activation Network and follow up to ensure a successful voting experience.

Hello, I'm out registering people to vote today, my name is _____ with (Organization's name). Voting is one of the most important ways to add our voices to shape community and policy issues that impact our lives. Many refugees and immigrants first register at their naturalization ceremony.
Are you a U.S. citizen - have you had your ceremony yet?

Did you register to vote?

While you can't register to vote until you become a U.S. citizen, you can still be engaged. Would you like to sign up to volunteer on and leading up to election day?

Have you moved since you last voted? If so, you will have to update your address if you did.

It's simple to register to vote today, you just have to fill out this basic information with your name and address.
(They fill out the form)
Thanks! I will turn this to the Election Board and they will mail you more information.
Would you also like to sign up to volunteer to help get people to the polls on election day? (If so have them sign up on the volunteer sign up sheet)

Have them fill out the registration form with their new address, then move to the last step to the right!

Sometimes when people register they don't actually make it out to vote, which is why we're asking people to sign up on the early voting / vote by mail list. The percentage of voting is much higher because you can vote from home or go to the polls on the weekend, rather than a workday, since elections are on a Tuesday. Fo you want to sign up for early voting?
Lastly, I would ask you to commit to voting today. One way you can do that is by filling out this commitment card, so that we can follow up with you and remind you to vote as we get closer to the elections?

Employer Roundtable: Set Up Roundtables to Support Refugees

There are countless opportunities for you to create a team that represents an important sector of the community that supports refugees. By convening a group of individuals together to speak to their individual and collective reasons for supporting refugees in their community, you can amplify individual support for refugees into a strong unified message. We encourage you to bring together a diverse group of individuals, from all walks of life and industries, not forgetting to include refugees themselves, to meet with local and national leaders.

Your teams can hold roundtables with members of your Congressional delegation, local elected leaders, and other community leaders, all with the aim of speaking in support of the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program.

Employers:

If you employ refugees, you know how important their contributions are to our economy – both locally and nationally. Gather other employers of refugees in your district or state and meet with your members of Congress and other elected leaders to share stories of the hard work refugees do to contribute to your business. Utilize your networks to identify and convene a large group of employers who can speak to the economic contributions of refugees. Meetings could include business owners, CEOs, managers, and former refugees who now own businesses.

Faith Leaders:

If you are a faith leader, you understand how meaningful it is to have refugees join and participate in your faith community, as well as the importance of welcoming the stranger and protecting the most vulnerable in your faith tradition. Gather leaders with diverse faith backgrounds in your district or state to share stories of the perspective and life refugees bring to your congregations and communities. Groups could include Bishops, Pastors, Imams, Priests, Rabbis, and other faith or community voices.

Veterans:

Veterans have dedicated their lives to supporting and defending the rights of Americans – including refugees. As someone who has served their country, you know that protecting the world's most vulnerable is part of our country's legacy and is also in the best interests of our national security. Many veterans have served alongside local persons as guides, interpreters, and more who now are seeking safety from the persecution they face due to their role in supporting U.S. troops. It's important elected officials here these stories and continue to uphold promises to our allies who need protection. Groups could include veterans, reserve and guard forces, or active duty U.S. Armed Forces.

First Responders:

As with Veterans, first responders have dedicated their careers to saving and defending the lives of all Americans – including refugees. First responders are committed to protecting all in times of need. A group of first responders could include police officers and other law enforcement, firefighters, and emergency medical personnel in your state or district.

Diverse Group of Voices:

Alternatively, you could construct a roundtable that includes representatives from each group, demonstrating how much refugees mean to various parts of a community. You could convene employers, faith leaders, veterans, and first responders and hold roundtables with your members of Congress or elected leaders together.

Other Voices:

Don't fit into a category above? No problem – convene a group of interested voices and schedule a meeting. It could be a group of local NGOs who work on varied issues, or just a group of concerned community members who want to tell their elected leaders why they support refugees. Just remember, bring along educational materials to leave behind with the office once you've met with them.
